A Quick Overview

What is Emotional Resilience?

Emotional Resilience is an essential skill for all children. It is about feeling in control and believing in one's ability to work through setbacks and challenging situations in a capable, effective manner. This capacity for resilience empowers the child to develop positive coping behaviours, to persist and try again in the face of failure, to bounce back with confidence and develop a healthy self-esteem.

There are many times in children's lives, whether it's facing difficulties at school or at home, dealing with changes within the family like a new sibling or family breakup, moving house or being exposed to more serious situations like natural disasters. As much as we would like to, we can't always protect them from something bad happening or the difficult times and stress in their lives. They need to be emotionally resilient so they can continue to move forward.
